50X1-HUM

1. The airfield is south of Petrovsk (45°23' N/52°19' N), Saratov Oblast, south of the railroad station. Runways and hangars were not seen.
2. About 200 twin-engine aircraft, painted grey-green and covered with tarpaulins, were parked in several rows in a semicircle at the field.
3. Most of the flying was with individual planes. There were occasional flights by formations of three or four planes. Parachuting from twin-engine aircraft, both individually and in large groups of up to platoon strength, was observed.
4. The air force personnel were quartered in a four-story stone barracks building in the town, south of the river and west of the road leading to the railroad station.
5. A radio transmitter was on a plateau northwest of the railroad station.
